Note: For 50¢, you may buy a chance on a luscious 16 lb. turkey, a holiday ham, or a special wreath.

Also: A box will be available at the party for those who would like to make contributions of canned goods for the Salvation Army.

4H CLUB NEWS

Through mid-December, the Senior group, Senior leaders and 4-Hers will collect clothes and toys for the needy. The Seniors are making stuffed animals for orphans for Christmas. A Christmas party and dance is being planned, tickets will be sold for the party; call Mrs. Byrd, 229-1723 for date, time, place, and ticket information.

Another meeting of the Uses of Clara Barton Task Force was held November 13. Susan Vogt has done some research with Mr. Carol Harman of the county library system. A room stocked with a changing supply of books, movies, magazines and records could be available for senior citizens drop-in daily, perhaps adjacent to the Post Office. The Department of Recreation would be willing, should the desire arise, to organize a Senior Citizens Club.

The Department of Recreation would also be willing to staff and plan an every other Friday night Teen Center for dropping-in, from 7:30-10:00 p.m., for 7th through 12th graders and have submitted letters to Dr. Elseroad with their plans.

Fran Wilson is working on a reference or resource room to be available for youngsters doing their homework and needing to look up something not available at home. Fran is also tracing the whereabouts of books from the Clara Barton School library that did not end up in the Bannockburn School library.

Mr. Mannes, of the Bethesda Boys Club, was present to outline future uses by the Boys Club of the facilities and possible offerings for our younger citizens. This Boys Club is manned almost exclusively by volunteers and storage would be helpful at Clara Barton and possibly future office space. 4th to 10th grade boys are now served; eventually this Boys Club hopes to serve girls.

Day Care, like all other requests and plans for uses of the building, now waits on decisions to be made by the Superintendent of Schools.

One thing has been decided for sure and that is the following schedule of class offerings from Adult Education of Montgomery County Public Schools beginning in January:

Editor's note: be checking your mailbox for registration information for these classes during the next week or so.

The Village News received two different articles on downzoning this month, and both articles are presented here side-by-side for your ease in comparison.

A CALL TO THE REAL CITIZENS OF CABIN JOHN

On October 1 of this year, the County Council voted in resolution #7-1962 to change the zoning status of the Quick Food Shop and the Gallery on MacArthur Blvd. from commercial to residential. In addition it recommends similar action for the Alpine Veterinary Hospital.

These properties are now classified as non-conforming uses. Their operations are severely restricted in order to eventually close them down. As an example, severe damage to either building would, under law, prohibit the owner to repair the structure. How relevant this is to all of us was demonstrated two weeks ago when vandals set fire to the Quick Food Shop. If severe damage had resulted, the owner would have been denied permission to reopen his business, and Cabin John would have been without a store today.

In addition the owners who have improved their buildings as places of business now must sell their properties as private residences. The financial loss they would incur must be suffered by the owners alone as there is no provision under Maryland law for any compensation from the State.

I cannot believe that the citizens of Cabin John really support this kind of action. Yet it is the Cabin John Citizens Association, an organization which purports to speak for all of us, which has been the prime motivator of this zoning change.

There is a petition being circulated to restore the Quick Food Shop and the Gallery to their commercial status. With less than two weeks of circulation it has collected over 200 signatures from the 539 homes in Cabin John. If you feel that these establishments have served the community well, and that their use has been both reasonable and proper, then please come to the Quick Food Shop, read and sign the petition.

However, which is more important, please attend the next Citizens Association meeting in January and confront those individuals responsible for this action. Only through the strength of your attendance can we hope to restore the Citizens Association to the real citizens of Cabin John.

DOWNZONING

Several properties in Cabin John have recently been downzoned from a commercial zoning to a residential one. This was done as part of a proposal by the Potomac Valley League (a group of citizens' associations along the Md. side of the Potomac), and with the support of the Cabin John Community Plan. The general idea behind the downzoning was to insure the basic residential nature of MacArthur Blvd. in Maryland, while allowing the existing commercial uses to remain as long as they are viable.

The community members who worked and voted on the Cabin John Community Plan looked at the proposal as it affected our section of MacArthur Blvd. The decision was made and approved by a vote at the town meeting in April, 1973, that, rather than limiting or eliminating all commercial uses of property along MacArthur Boulevard in Cabin John, it would make sense to consolidate the commercial use on one central convenient tract of land - the Lukey tract. With the sewer treatment and other factors, development of this tract commercially was obviously years in the future. So, the application of an "existing use" clause to the proposed downzoned commercial properties seemed to solve the community's short-term commercial needs, while the proposed shopping center would solve the very long range ones.

Some confusion about what downzoning actually means has arisen, especially after the circulation of a petition in some parts of Cabin John, protesting the lowering of the Shirley Trebeck art gallery house and the Quick Food Shop. Both Ed Winslow, president of the Citizens Association, and I have received calls asking for a clear explanation of what the downzoning really means. I have talked to people at the County Zoning Board, the County Board of Appeals, and the County Attorney's office, and this is what they told me.

An existing commercial use which does not conform to the actual zoning but which is allowed to remain, has some restrictions. To one will be closed down or existing unless one of the following things happens. If the building is more than 50% destroyed by fire or other calamity, it cannot be rebuilt as commercial, and will revert to residential. If the building is vacant and unused commercially for six months, it will become residential. The building itself cannot be expanded or added on to under this type of zoning.

Certain types of changes may be made by the county, or a rezoning case filed. In general, the commercial use goes along with the land. So, the land may be sold to a new owner, and the use continued. A new manager or tenant may come in to continue the former existing use. The commercial use itself may be changed under certain conditions. A less dense use is that in some cases, rezoning is available. Rezoning is usually done in a rezoning petition or act to allow a change of commercial use, or to change the zoning, a lot depends on the desires of the community, and of the surrounding land.

Currently, on the agenda for the new County Council is a new zoning category - C-N or Commercial Neighborhood. While this zoning category will have to go through a public hearing for revision and approval before it's adopted, its goal is to provide "low intensity business and commercial facilities, primarily for the day-to-day convenience of the immediate neighborhood." As now written, the maximum area for such a zoned property couldn't exceed one acre. The past County Council included in its downzoning action the provision that all property owners who were downzoned would be allowed to apply for this new commercial zoning without fees, after it was approved by the public and council.

Finally, it should be said that the downzoning in Cabin John did not reflect bad community feeling about our existing commercial services. In general, the community appreciates the diversity and life which commercial properties give Cabin John. However, some commercial zonings, while acceptable as used now, had potential for very intense redevelopment. For instance, the two story grey frame building on the corner of MacArthur and 79th St was previously zoned C-O (commercial-office). While quietly used as office space now, the zoning category of C-O would allow a building up to 8 stories high or 90 feet tall. The fact that this land now carries a residential zoning does not affect its present use. It does provide a long range way to keep Cabin John's small town atmosphere and residential nature.

The Land Use Committee will be working on all zoning matters as they come up, including the formulation of the C-N zone. Anyone with questions or who wishes to join the committee, call me, Susan Vogt, at 229-0470.

THE DEATH OF A BOULEVARD

Recently MacArthur Blvd. has been the object of drastic alterations, which when completed, may well change the character of Cabin John as we know it today.

For years the Boulevard has needed resurfacing. But improvement, when it finally came, resulted not only in the roads being resurfaced, but in its being widened and straightened as well.

The implications of this are disheartening for Cabin John residents - we can now expect an enormous increase in the amount of traffic on MacArthur Blvd. Not only will there be more cars, but they will be traveling much faster. The gentle curves and narrow lanes, which have tended to restrict the speed of automobiles, have been widened and straightened to actually encourage a more intensive use. The condition of the road now makes it an attractive commuter route for people in Potomac and outlying communities to zoom through the heart of Cabin John on their way to and from Washington. Why wasn't another lane added to the GW Parkway where that kind of traffic belongs? The surface of MacArthur Blvd. could have been repaired, but the character of the road need not have been destroyed.

Anyone who remembers River Road as it once was can now add MacArthur Blvd. to the scrapbook.

What does this mean to those people in Cabin John who live along the Blvd.? What are the implications to our children, pets, and wildlife who are used to crossing MacArthur Blvd. with a casual glance?

Once again the Citizens Association has acted irresponsibly in endorsing this project. They never understood how a road can act as a focal point for the civic life of a community, and not merely as a device for getting from one place to another as quickly as possible. It is the Citizens Association who now must answer to the community for the role they have played in the birth of a highway and the death of a Boulevard.

SEVEN LOCKS ROAD
LOCAL PARK

QUESTIONNAIRE

In the near future Cabin John will have a new 10 acre park just off Seven Locks Road and northwest of the Palisades Pool area. Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission is eager for citizens' input so that the park will serve Cabin John's desires and needs.

We have been allotted $112,000 to spend on grading, equipment, shelters, and courts, etc. The construction of bike trails through the site, connecting the park with other parts of the town, will be funded with other money, not the $112,000 budgeted for the park. Also picnic tables, grills, water fountains, walk ways and bike rack are included or provided for under the separate $50,000 allocated for utilities on this Seven Locks Road Park.

The possibility exists for the access road to be the existing driveway to Palisades Pool. If this is impossible part of the $112,000 must go to the access road (approximately 10,000).

Please indicate your preference for facilities to be included in the park below, fold, and mail (form addressed already).
