NOISE: AN ILLUSORY END TO AN AGE OLD PROBLEM?

Cat Feild

Three weeks ago, the Federal Aviation Administration's Acting Director, agreed to limit the noise pollution over Cabin John by ordering all planes, heading in a southerly and westerly direction, to turn off over the CIA Headquarters in Virginia, two miles below Cabin John. Planes flying north, however, would continue their patterns over Cabin John.

Director James E. Dow, Senators Beall and Mathias, and Representative Gude met on September 10, with two residents of Cabin John, John Harper and Calvin Kytile, to discuss several means of alleviating the irritating and incessant noise caused by airflights over Cabin John.

Afterwards, Messrs. Kytile and Harper expressed confidence in the positive outcome of the meeting but added that they "did not want to achieve relief at the expense of other communities." Mr. Harper indicated the purposes of the meeting as threefold: to enforce, where possible, the mandatory noise abatement procedures drawn up months ago by the FAA; to identify the airmen's real regulations ("so that we all know what our rights are"); and "to equitably distribute the inevitable air traffic coming from National Airport over all of the Washington Metropolitan area."

As perhaps expected, Virginians are up-in-arms over Dow's decision of three weeks. So, Congressman Fisher and the Fairfax County Council requested a meeting with Director Dow to dispute the solution to divert some of the flow of traffic towards their jurisdiction for their constituents to endure, and to propose a better means to end the whole noise issue.

So, after more than two years of efforts to achieve definite reduction in noise pollution, the citizens of Cabin John may hold their collective breath awaiting the implementation of this premature solution of September 10th. John Harper concedes that in the short run some real possible, technical solutions can be sought, such as a two-segment landing approach and a reduction in power thrust at take-off, without the touchy problem of re-routing these noise-machines over "someone else's head."

GUDE TALKS ABOUT POTOMAC RIVER TRIP AT GLEN ECHO TOWN HALL ON OCTOBER 28

Congressman Gilbert Gude will give a talk and slide show on his month-long Potomac River trip this past August. The presentation will be given at the Fall Open Meeting of the Potomac Valley League on October 28 at 8:00pm in the Glen Echo Town Hall.

The steps needed to salvage and upgrade the Potomac River are of utmost interest to him. During his month-long trip with individuals from the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin Congressman Gude interviewed politicians, citizens groups and industry on each side of the river. The fate of the Potomac River is a topic which will be of interest to everyone in the Cabin John area.

The meeting is an open one with a few committee reports and the rest of the evening set aside for Congressman Gude's slide show and talk. The public is invited. S.K.

DR. PHYLLIS MAGRAB APPOINTED DIRECTOR OF CHILD DEVELOPMENT CENTER AT GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY

Dr. Phyllis Magrab, chief pediatric psychologist, Department of Pediatrics, and deputy director of the University Affiliated Program for Child Development at Georgetown University has been appointed Director of that program.

The UAPCD is a training, service and research center serving children with developmental problems from birth to 21 years of age. This multidiscipline program places emphasis on the problems of mental retardation, epilepsy, autism, learning disabilities, and cerebral palsy. One of 38 such programs in the nation, it focuses on training professional personnel to work with handicapped children and their parents.

The newly appointed program director, Dr. Magrab, came to Georgetown University as an intern in clinical child psychology and became psychologist in the G.U. Children's Diagnostic and Development Center in 1968. She received her B.A. at City College of New York, and her Master's from the University of Maryland. In 1969 she earned her Ph.D. from the University of Maryland and joined their faculty as an Adjunct Assistant Professor of School Psychology. Dr. Magrab is the author of 15 publications, a member of the editorial board of Pediatric Psychology and the co-editor with Robert Johnston, M.D., of a book in press, Developmental Disorders: Evaluation, Treatment and Education. She is the mother of three children and lives in Cabin John.

POTOMAC COMMUNITY FEDERAL CREDIT UNION SEEKS SPACE IN CLARA BARTON SCHOOL

Bruce Patner, President of Potomac Community Federal Credit Union is seeking the endorsement of the Cabin John Citizens Association to the Montgomery County School Board of their locating a part-time office for the Credit Union in the Clara Barton School.

Their charter as a community credit union allows them to serve persons who work or reside within the greater Potomac, West Bethesda and Cabin John communities. In a letter to Andy Rice, President of the Cabin John Citizens Association, Mr. Patner said that "we are most anxious to extend our credit union services to Cabin John."

According to that letter, Mr. Patner is seeking a place in Clara Barton School in which to locate a part-time office, with hours to suit the community needs, and their present budget. They intend to expand the hours, as activity demands.

Potomac Community Federal Credit Union is utilizing a substantial amount of its funds in participation with the Maryland Higher Education Loan Corporation in order to help many young people achieve a higher education. A number of adults have also used these loans to return to school. They also have funds available for FHA insured home improvement loans.

If you feel that Potomac Community Federal Credit Union would benefit the Cabin John Community by locating in Clara Barton School, and thereby better serve us, or if you feel otherwise, please contact Diane Kellogg at 229-8163 and express your opinion. THE VILLAGE NEWS also welcomes your comments and opinions. If you wish more information about Potomac Community Federal Credit Union, call them at 299-2400.

CLARA BARTON DAY CARE CENTER SPONSORS SQUARE DANCE ON OCTOBER 4

The Clara Barton Day Care Center is sponsoring a Square Dance Benefit on Saturday, October 4 at Clara Barton School at 8:00pm. Ed Winslow will do the calling. Refreshments will be served. Tickets are $5.00 per couple. For advanced ticket sales call Ann Segal at 320-3796, Arlyn Jurin at 229-8279 or Aimee Nover at 229-1444.

If you haven't already done so, please contribute to the CABIN JOHN PARK VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT now during the Fundraising Drive. They need your support!

REVIVAL OF CABIN JOHN TROLLEY LINE DISCUSSED

According to an article by Pete Clapper in the August issue of The Echo, "there's discussion of reincarnating trolley cars in the Washington area, and one of the routes mentioned is the old Cabin John line along the Potomac River past Glen Echo."

"It's still in the talk stage and they don't talk about them as trolley cars or streetcars anymore. The new terminology is LRV - for light rail vehicle."

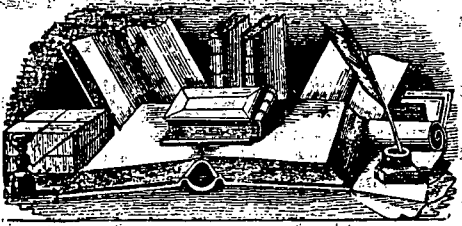

According to the article, an editorial in a local paper recently asserted that officials of the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments and the Maryland-National Capitol Park and Planning Commission were among observers at a conference near Philadelphia where the LRV was the subject. The editorial reported that the D.C. City Council and the city's planning office have given preliminary consideration to the idea of using the trolley as a supplement to Metro.

One of the routes suggested in the paper was the "old right-of-way of the abandoned Cabin John trolley line, a scenic route along the Potomac that could be connected to fringe parking for the bicentennial crowds."

WASHINGTON CATHEDRAL BICENTENNIAL TOUR

From October 1 through 1976 the Washington Cathedral will be holding a Special Bicentennial Tour. A guided tour on our religious American heritage as witnessed in Washington Cathedral will include an introductory talk and walking tour through the cathedral, pointing out with explanation highlights of our early American history - our struggle for independence - as seen in stone carving, stained glass and other artistic media. Arrangements for this tour should be made three to six weeks in advance of the desired tour date. Please write: Mrs. Frank Hammond, Director of Visitor Services, Washington Cathedral, Mount Saint Alban, Washington, D.C. 20016 or call 966-3500, ext. 291 for bookings.

On October 4 there will be a Cathedral Open House - "The Wall Comes Tumbling Down..." which will focus on the final construction of the nave. The full length of the nave will be open in 1976. Events of the day will include special interest tours of stained glass, architecture and construction. Demonstrations of flower arranging, stained glass work and stone carving will go on throughout the day. Entertainment will include Street '70 Mime Company, D.C. Youth Orchestra Program Faculty Orchestra, a 42-piece professional symphony orchestra, "The Nine Tailors - Revisited," a repeat of the popular Summer Festival Change Ringing demonstration. Refreshments will be on sale. The day will close with a musical thanksgiving featuring the Cathedral Choral Society, the combined glee clubs of the cathedral's schools and musicians who have performed during the day.

LETTERS...

The following letter was intended for the September issue of THE VILLAGE NEWS. Due to insufficient funds to print both a September and October issue, and our fundraising not being until October, it was necessary to print only an October issue of THE VILLAGE NEWS.

To Cabin John Residents:

As Cabin John starts a new year, we are writing this open letter to all residents to ask you to consider the Cabin John Citizens Association your organization for taking action on the community problems which you think are important.

At the first meeting of the Association in September - 8:00pm, Tuesday, September 23 at Clara Barton School - there will be a presentation of each of the matters which particularly concern Cabin John today - such as reopening of the Cabin John Bridge, the widening of Seven Locks Road, the use of the Clara Barton School, etc. If you have some item of concern that you want to have discussed or acted upon, please come to the meeting and talk about it.

During the meeting there will be an effort to find out which issues are felt to be most important, so that the Citizens Association can concentrate on these - without, of course, neglecting other matters.

At the meeting, we shall also be looking ahead to the social activities of the year, following up the very successful Crab Feast of last July. We want to have other enjoyable community get-togethers, ending up with the big Bicentennial celebration next spring or summer.

Everybody in Cabin John is welcome as a member of the Citizens Association. Even if you're not a member, we hope you will come to the meeting on September 23rd!

Andrew Rice, President
 Frank McKinney, 1st Vice-President
 Robert Hook, 2nd Vice-President

REASONABLE

Call ED CLARK at 229-7311

Dear Readers,

BRAVO! This is what Shelly, the editor and Steve, the art director, should be hearing from everyone. They have worked very hard to get our newspaper in the black and keep its head above water. Thanks to the Crab Feast and the ads that Shelly has obtained, we are now able to take a breath of air. But this money will soon run out, unless we keep replenishing our funds. We can't depend solely on one person. This paper needs to be a joint effort.

Let's show Shelly that Cabin John wants to continue our VILLAGE NEWS. Any donations are welcome, gladly! Also support the paper by buying the artistic t-shirts at their reasonable rate. We will be having a Fundraising Drive in October which is tax deductible! When the delivery boys and girls come around, give whatever you can afford. Can anyone think of a better way for community communication than THE VILLAGE NEWS? It keeps us informed on local happenings and anything that needs to be explained that is coming up in Cabin John.

Congratulations for the great job Shelly and the staff are doing. It takes a lot of manhours to put out this type of paper.

Sincerely,
 Mrs. Mary E. Shaw, Treasurer
 13 Russell Road
 Cabin John Gardens

P.S. A little thing to remember - this is a non-profit paper. Everything goes right back to the community by way of the paper. None of the workers are salaried except for the delivery boys and girls. Think of the volunteer hours it takes to compose such a paper - AND GIVE TO THE VILLAGE NEWS!

Dear Editor:

The August 1975 issue of The Village News is inconsistent within itself, in that it carries the article and commentary "Bridging the Union Arch Gap" along with articles attacking other reporters who "twist words and deliberately exaggerate truths to sell newspapers" and practice "irresponsible journalism which is a disservice to the public interest."

These criticisms apply equally well to Mr. Magnuson's commentary.

Sincerely,
 Harry C. Ways, Chief
 Aqueduct
 Washington Aqueduct
 Division

Editor's note. The funny thing about freedom of speech is that it guarantees all of us the right to our opinion, even Mr. Magnuson.

Congratulations are in order for Steve Whittaker (son of Richard and JoAnn Whittaker of Arden Road) on winning a senatorial scholarship to the University of Maryland for four years!

Noted and lifted from elsewhere -
 "A newspaper is the roar of the presses and the whine of the reporters."

DOWNZONING

The following letter was sent by Andy Rice, President of the Cabin John Citizens Association to the Montgomery County Council on August 25, 1975.

I am writing on behalf of the citizens of Cabin John, nearly 200 of whom gathered in a "town meeting" in the Clara Barton School on June 17 to express their views regarding three parcels of property on MacArthur Boulevard.

Two of these parcels -- parcel 9 at 7607 MacArthur Boulevard (Quick Food Shop) and parcel 5 at 7687 MacArthur Boulevard (Artisans Gallery) - had been "downzoned" by the County Council in October 1974 from C-1 commercial to R-90 residential. At the same time the Council had directed the Planning Board to initiate steps aimed at similar downzoning of the third parcel, 7732 MacArthur Boulevard (Alpine Veterinary Hospital).

At a 1973 town meeting, the citizens of Cabin John had voted, in the course of approving an overall community plan, in favor of the downzoning of parcels 9 and 5, but had excluded the Veterinary Hospital property from this recommended action.

After the Council's October 1974 MacArthur Boulevard downzoning decision (Resolution No. 7-1962), questions arose within the Cabin John community as to whether the downzoning of the two properties was in fact desirable. Petitions were circulated calling for the restoration of parcels 9 and 5 to their previous C-1 status, and over 400 signatures were collected. The matter was raised at meetings of the Cabin John Citizens Association which decided to hold another town meeting open to all Cabin John citizens, whether or not members of the Association, to determine community sentiment on the issue.

At the meeting on June 17, by a vote of 148 to 33, the citizens adopted a resolution directing the President and officers of the Cabin John Citizens Association to petition the County Council to restore parcels 9 and 5 to their previous C-1 zoning and to halt downzoning procedures on the Veterinary Hospital parcel.

This strong expression of community opinion appears -- judging from the debate before and during the meeting -- to be based on a conviction that commercial use (of the C-1 type) of these properties is beneficial to the community and is fully consistent with and supportive of the small-town character of Cabin John and that the downzoning of the properties has brought about a decline in their value which was unfair to their owners.

I hope the Council will respond favorably to this petition and I look forward to hearing from you.

GILBERT GUDE - A CONGRESSMAN IN SEARCH OF THE POTOMACKevin Flynn*

Representative Gilbert Gude, the Republican Congressman who represents Cabin John and Montgomery County in Congress, spent his summer recess this year travelling the Potomac, from its source at the Maryland-West Virginia border to Point Lookout, where the river meets the Chesapeake Bay.

Gude and about 15 other persons, some of them from the Cabin John vicinity, made the entire 400-mile journey, travelling by canoe, hiking along railroad tracks, bicycling the C&O Canal, even riding in coal trains and in oyster boats.

The trip took the entire month of August, and was organized by Gude's staff with a good deal of help from the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin. Five students, one from each state of the Potomac River basin, were sponsored by the Commission.

The explorers passed through the Cabin John area during the weekend of August 23 to 25. They hiked from Seneca to Great Falls, and then began a hectic series of tours in the Washington area. Many groups associated with the river in the area tried to get the attention of the congressman and his group.

From Great Falls, the group travelled down MacArthur Boulevard to the Dalecarlia water treatment plant, detouring around the Cabin John Bridge (which is still a working part of the water supply system). At Dalecarlia, Gude met with the Washington press corps to discuss the problems of supplying Washington with adequate amounts of safe water.

The groups travelled back to Great Falls, on the Virginia side, later that afternoon. They were scheduled to see a safe rock climbing demonstration, but before it got started, one of the students in the group slipped off a rock and plunged into Great Falls at perhaps its wildest part. Prompt rescue efforts by three park rangers on duty saved his life.

On Saturday, August 23, the group set out hiking along the canal from Glen Echo at Lock 7, and hiked to Fletchers Boat House. Then they canoed to Key Bridge, walked along the historic Georgetown waterfront, and biked the rest of the day down the river-side bike path, all the way to Alexandria.

For the next week, the group travelled the Potomac Estuary, mostly by boat. Historic homes, power plants, and oyster beds were all visited. The trip ended August 30 at St. Mary's City in southern Maryland.

Issues discussed in the Washington area included the traditional Potomac problems - water supply (now reaching the limits of the river) and sewage treatment. Most of the river's pollution in this area come from the effluents of sewage treatment plants such as the enormous, regional plant at Blue Plains in D.C.

Other Potomac problems in the Washington vicinity are mainly the result of urbanization: runoff from streets and parking lots, sediment in the river from construction sites and other erosion-prone activities, and some pollutants from upstream tributaries.

The problems are compounded around Washington by a natural fact: the Potomac here, below Little Falls, becomes a tidal estuary, influenced by the tides. The river broadens and becomes sluggish below the Falls. Thus, sewage dumped into the river stays there a long time, and may even move upstream. Luckily for the river, the Washington area is relatively free of the industrial activity that usually pollutes urban streams.

The Potomac trip was primarily an educational adventure, and an attempt to see the river from where a person can jump over it to where it is 11 miles wide. The trip through Washington attempted to hit only the major problems. Gude, who lives in Bethesda, is very familiar with the river here. His support of the Clara Barton House, Glen Echo Park, and the C&O Canal legislation have made him well-known along the river.

Both upstream and downstream from Washington, the Gude party was in some unfamiliar territory. At the source of the river, 300 miles from Washington, there are severe pollution problems from the acid that drains into the river from abandoned coal mines. The group heard from miners and water pollution experts, saw strip mines in Garrett and Allegany Counties, and toured a deep mine in West Virginia.

The Potomac Estuary, which extends for 100 miles south of Washington, seems a particularly critical region of the river. A massive construction program in the Washington area is aimed at improving sewage treatment, but there is still great concern that increasing population, bigger and bigger power plants along the river, and a planned oil refinery in St. Mary's County will continue an irreversible decline in the life of the Potomac.

After seeing the point where the Potomac empties into the bay, the group had a picnic and went home. They were tired, dirty and in great shape - and they had a little better idea of how a river works.

Many of the participants on the trip come from the vicinity of Cabin John, including Nancy Long of Glen Echo, a member of the Glen Echo town council and chairman of the C&O Canal Advisory Commission; Kevin Flynn, staff member of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin; Robert Harrigan, chairman of the Citizens for the Potomac National River; and Bruce Wood of Mr. Gude's staff; all of Glen Echo Heights; and Barbara Yeaman of the League of Women Voters and Ken Rollins of the Izaak Walton League, both of Brookmont.

CABIN JOHN METHODIST CHURCH RUMMAGE SALE

The Cabin John United Methodist Church will have a Rummage Sale on Friday, October 3 and Saturday, October 4 in the church. Hours are 10:00am-4:00pm on Friday and 9:00am to noon on Saturday. Reverend Allyn Riecke says they have acquired lots of rummage and that this should be one of their best sales. BE SURE TO COME!

THE VILLAGE NEWS SPONSORS DOOR TO DOOR CAMPAIGN ON OCTOBER 24 THRU 26

There will be a door to door campaign to raise money for THE VILLAGE NEWS on the weekend of October 25. THE VILLAGE NEWS will be enlisting the aid of its regular deliverers as well as other children to go door to door to collect money to keep THE VILLAGE NEWS in business.

For every dollar a campaign worker collects, he will earn 10 cents. There will be a prize for the worker who collects the most for the newspaper. Anyone interested in working on the campaign drive, please call Beverly Sullivan at 229-7167. Include a friend in your plans and you can walk the neighborhood together.

There will be a meeting on October 22 at the Cabin John Methodist Church for everyone who volunteers for the campaign at 7pm. There will be refreshments after the meeting which will end by 8pm.

When the Cabin John Kids come to collect for THE VILLAGE NEWS . . . PLEASE GIVE AS MUCH AS YOU CAN, so we don't lose having THE NEWS!

TO THE PARENTS OF CHILDREN ATTENDING BANNOCKBURN SCHOOL

To encourage all Cabin John children to participate in after-school activities, we started a carpool committee last year. It was successful and it is continuing this year. If your child wants to stay after school for an activity, but has a problem getting transportation home, call either Trudy Nicholson (229-0195) or Beverly Sullivan (229-7167) for help. We'll help you arrange for a ride back to Cabin John with another child attending the same activities.
