Friends of Moses Hall Wins Award

The Janet Montgomery DAR Chapter awarded the DAR Excellence in Historic Preservation Medal to the Friends of Moses Hall on January 14. This award honors individuals and groups that promote local history and historic preservation. Friends of Moses Hall was also honored by DAR's presentation of a Women in American History Award for Sarah Gibson.

The history of Sarah Gibson and the Gibson Grove community presents a unique opportunity to educate the public about the important role African American benevolent societies played during a time of racial segregation in Maryland.

CJCA Membership - Contribute Dues by May 1

By Scott and Heidi Lewis
Co-Presidents, Cabin John Citizens Association

We're hard-pressed to imagine a better value for money than the $20 dues each household is asked to contribute to the Cabin John Citizens Association.

Your contribution makes possible community events such as the Turkey Trot, Holiday Party, Spring Egg Hunt, and 4th of July Parade; neighborhood communication and information via The Village News and cabinjohn.org; and ongoing advocacy for safe streets, quiet skies, unspoiled parks and streams, and preserved and interpreted history.

Cabin John is a vibrant, congenial, connected place because so many people here have decided that investing their time, talents, and resources in our community is worth it. Please use the form on page 11 to submit your $20 dues today. VN

CJCA February 2023 Meeting

By Kelly Banuls and Heidi Lewis

Scott Lewis presented January's meeting minutes which were approved. He announced that the February blood drive tied a CJ record for most pints donated—47—and shared blood drive coordinator Karen Melchar's reminder of the importance of registering in advance so Inova brings enough supplies and workers. During the discussion of Trivia Night, which was generally praised as a fun event, a meeting attendee asked if CJCA could circulate the final standings, and it was mentioned that the acoustics in the hall were a challenge. Marcy Harrison presented an update on the Cabin John Online Directory, which went live on January 31. There are around 40 people who have registered an account, and Marcy has received positive feedback. Scott stressed the importance of all households in Cabin John contributing their $20 CJCA dues; a letter was recently sent to all 20818 households. Scott presented plans for upcoming events, including the Spring Egg Hunt (March 26) and Weed Warrior Work Day (April 22).

CJCA resident Elliott Schoen presented his map and research notes for an 8.5-mile Cabin John History Run. Elliott has an interest in education and history and shared some of the sites that will be included on the run, a small sample of which includes the former Clara Barton School (now CBCC)—which in 1955 was one of the first integrated in Montgomery County, the Union Arch Bridge—the longest single arch stone bridge in the world when it was completed in 1864, the Bannockburn School—site of voluntary busing with a DC school in the late 1960s, and the quarry on Seven Locks Road, stone from which was used to build the National Cathedral and the National Zoo, and many more historic sites. The Inaugural Cabin John History Run will take place Saturday, May 6; more details will be shared as they become formalized. We expect that in addition to a run, the idea will be further developed to include guided and self-guided walking tours and other resources to encourage people to see and celebrate the many historic landmarks that surround us here in Cabin John. We will also seek input from Cabin John's history buffs to add to the number and descriptions of the historic sites.

Other business included a discussion of a Cabin John Home and Garden tour, probably in Spring 2024. Theresa Burton and Heidi Lewis said they would research the previous tour and contact Cabin Johners who were involved in that event to lay the groundwork for this future event. VN

Spring Egg Hunt

By Heidi Lewis

The Cabin John Spring Egg Hunt, a delightful 15-minute scramble by the youngest Cabin Johners for goody-filled eggs, will be held Sunday, March 26, at 4:00 pm, at the Cabin John Local Park (aka field behind the Clara Barton Center).

All CJ kids of elementary school age and younger (accompanied by parents or responsible adults) are welcome to participate in the hunt. Families should gather on the basketball court and wait for instructions from the volunteers, who will let the young hunters down to the lower playground in age-group waves. Plan to stay and play at the park, and maybe your children will meet some new neighborhood friends.

CJCA Village News Editor Loretta Devery Ingalls is managing the Spring Egg Hunt. We want to ensure there are enough eggs for everyone, so please RSVP to cjcapresidents@gmail.com with the number of children in your group.

Bring a basket and don't be late. The last hunt drew some 50 kids, and all 800 eggs were found within 15 minutes! VN

Next CJCA Mtg: March 29, 7:30 pm

The 2022 CJCA Financial Statement

By Scott Lewis and Bob Walsh

As shown in the CJCA financial statement below, 2022 marked another successful financial year with a healthy income from the Crab Feast and strong participation in membership dues and donations. We thank all for their generosity.

The money raised by the Cabin John Citizens Association supports the many events our community organization hosts and the advocacy we support. Many of the events are free, and more importantly, they foster and support our community spirit here in Cabin John. A special thanks to Bob Walsh, CJCA treasurer, who continues to expertly manage the association's finances. VN

Huge Turnout for Blood Drive

By Karen Melchar

The Cabin John Citizens Association and Clara Barton Community Center sponsored Inova Blood Drive held Sunday, February 5, was one of our most successful as we collected 47 pints — matching a record set by Cabin John donors in 2010.

Thank you to CBCC staff Barry Jones and Lolita Powell for their work making our drives possible, Susan Shipp, Justin Webster, and Benno Schmidt for pre-drive publicity and setup-breakdown, and our registration table volunteers Kai Nelson, Louise Tucker, and Charles Court.

We had 31 donors scheduled for appointments and a whopping 19 walk-in donors, which led to the Inova crew having to request more bags! Our apologies to the walk-ins who were turned away, and our heartfelt thanks to the four donors who stayed to wait for the bags to arrive.

Over half of the 49 people who came to the drive were Cabin Johners. We also welcomed a few donors now able to give as the FDA has lifted the geographic deferral on potential donors from (or longtime travelers to) the United Kingdom, France, and Ireland in the 1980s and 1990s.

The Inova crew chief told me, "this is a great drive every time," and I don't think it's only because we supply the sandwiches from Market on the Boulevard! Thanks to all, and see you in May. VN

March 2023 Neighborly News

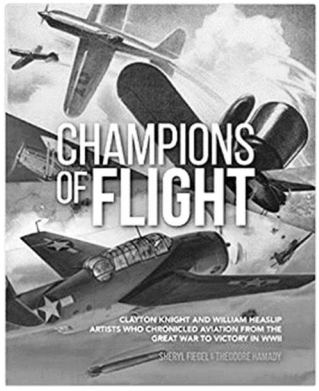

By Heidi and Scott Lewis

Susan Shipp and Marcy Harrison deserve a big round of applause and sincere thanks for cleaning up, clearing out, and organizing the CJCA storage area at the Clara Barton Community Center. It is a wonderful service to the newer CJCA officers and all of Cabin John for Susan and Marcy to have put our community resources in such good order.

It is with sadness we mention that Jim Kretz, of 81st Street, passed away on Monday, February 20, after a short illness. Jim was 77 years old and is survived by his wife, Sana Shtasel, and his daughters, Flanders and Alera. Born in Indiana, Jim was a longtime Cabin John resident and treasurer of the BES PTA. He will be missed for his quick wit, curiosity, and kind and gentle nature.

Longtime Cabin John resident and Art Historian Sheryl A. Fiegel of Spring Road has co-authored a book entitled Champions of Flight: Clayton Knight and William Heaslip, Artists Who Chronicled Aviation from the Great War to Victory in WWII (Casemate). This gorgeous book explores artwork that influenced a generation of Americans flocking to US military service after Pearl Harbor. Come out and support Sheryl's two book signings with the Air & Space museum (timed entry to museums required): April 1 from noon-2:00 pm at the National Air and Space Museum in Downtown DC, and April 2 from noon-2:00 pm, at the Steven F. Udvar-Hazy Center in Chantilly, VA.

Have your Amazon deliveries been delivered by UPS recently - as opposed to being delivered via Amazon Delivery? While difficult to confirm, a recent conversation with CJ's trusty UPS delivery driver informed all who asked that as part of Amazon's recent layoffs, Amazon is using UPS for last-mile delivery in Cabin John. Only time will tell how long it will last.

Weed Warrior Workday, Earth Day Help Remove Invasive Plants

By Mark Frey

Help protect our neighborhood park and one of Montgomery County's gems - the Cabin John Local Park. We will be working to remove invasive garlic mustard plants that are outcompeting natives and causing problems for the native wildlife. Meet at the Cabin John Creek trailhead near the playground. You'll learn about the local ecology and help the native plants and animals that make this park their home. If you want to help on other days in April, too, please let Mark Frey know (runcator@gmail.com).

When:
Saturday, April 22, from 10:00 am to noon

Where:
Cabin John Local Park, 7401 MacArthur Blvd., Cabin John, MD. Meet at the trailhead near the playground.

What to Bring:
- Clothes that can get dirty, rain gear as necessary.
- Sturdy closed-toe shoes (required)
- Water to drink
- Bug spray (optional)
- A pair of work gloves
- A few sturdy trash bags

What to Know
- There is poison ivy in the work area - take precautions if you are susceptible.
- We'll be working on steep slopes.

Who
Everyone! Though note that due to the rough underbrush and steep slopes, volunteers 16 and under must be accompanied by a responsible adult.

Weather
This program is rain or shine — but will be canceled in case of high winds or lightning.

Community Service / SSL Hours: This program fulfills community service requirements. We will have SSL forms available.

This Weed Warriors volunteer effort is planned and managed by Montgomery County Parks, a division of the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Go to https://montgomeryparks.org/ for more information. Additional questions? Please get in touch with Mark Frey at runcator@gmail.com. VN

Save the Date: FoCJC Eco-Movie Screening, March 26

Cabin Johners are invited to a free screening of the new environmental film Upstream, Downriver on Sunday, March 26, from 4:00-5:30 pm. Admission is free and open to all. Sponsored by Friends of Cabin John Creek and Luxmanor Citizens Association, Upstream, Downriver takes viewers into the heart of the battle for water justice.

POST-FILM DISCUSSION: features the Upstream, Downriver film producer Marissa Woods and local water activist Nancy Stoner, president of Potomac Riverkeepers Network.

VIEWING LOCATION: Josiah Henson Museum, 11410 Old Georgetown Road, North Bethesda 20852.

PARKING: is available in front of the museum, and additional parking is available across the street at the Kennedy Shriver Aquatic Center, 5900 Executive Blvd, Rockville, MD 20852.

Summer Jobs Available at CBCC

By Barry Jones

Clara Barton Community Center is looking to hire local people.

Summer Fun Camp is seeking high school and college students to staff the camp from June 26 through August 4, 2023. Work hours will vary as the camp runs from 8:00 am to 6:00 pm. Camp staff, who must be at least 16 years old, will assist with planning, organizing, and leading a variety of camp activities, including crafts, sports, and more for campers ages 6-12. The job pays $15 per hour.

CBCC also seeks a front desk attendant. Must be at least 18 years old. Work hours would vary between 8:30 am to 8:00 pm, Monday to Thursday, and 8:30 am to 3:00 pm on Friday. Pay is $15 per hour.

For more information about these fun and convenient work opportunities, contact Barry Jones, manager of the community center, by phone at 240-777-4911 or by email at barry.jones@montgomerycountymd.gov. VN

DID YOU KNOW?

There is an important difference between prequalified and preapproved for a mortgage:

- Prequalifying is just the first step in the mortgage application process. It gives a borrower an idea of how large a loan they likely qualify for. Prequalification is based on data the borrower submits to the lender. The borrower simply states their information; they do not have to prove it.

- Preapproval is a step up from prequalification. It is a conditional commitment by the lender to actually grant the borrower a mortgage. Preapproval requires completing a mortgage application and submitting various documents to help prove how much income the borrower has and their debt load.

A Churn of Earthworms

By Eric Dinerstein

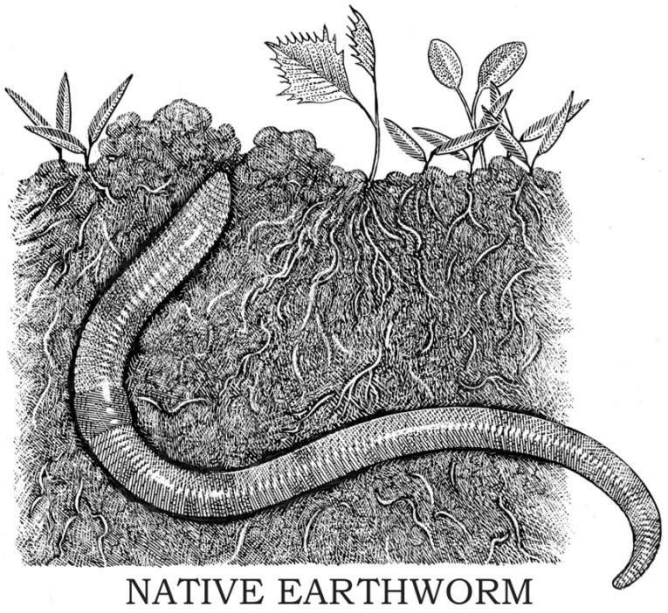

Colorful names of animal aggregations abound: a crash of rhinos, a murder of crows, a murmuration of starlings. I have yet to find one that applies to the humble earthworm. When you brush away the leaf litter and dig into the forest soil, what do you call the wriggling masses of earthworms interrupted in the middle of performing nature's chores? So I offer the following: a churn of earthworms. For where we have a wealth of earthworms in our forests, we have a secret ingredient to saving life on Earth.

An early sign of spring is the activity of earthworms, pushing through the earth and pulling down decaying plant matter with them. This rather pedestrian description of the daily lives of earthworms masks their superpower characteristics: those upstairs/downstairs earthworm movements have many beneficial attributes. The most obvious, as any serious gardener will tell you, is the aeration and softening of the soil. These interactions, between worms and soil, benefit plants by improving water flow through the soil and allowing tiny chutes and tunnels for gas exchange that improve root condition and growth. But the biggest benefit is one that scientists are only now discovering: that native earthworms punch above their weight when it comes to sequestering carbon in the soils. It is theorized that where leaf litter builds up under the forest canopy, if there are fewer earthworms in the soil layer, decomposition is slower than where earthworms are plentiful. Instead of pulling down the layer of decaying leaf material, the litter in these areas where few native earthworms release gases back into the atmosphere, thus having minimal effect on improving carbon balance and stabilizing the climate.

Most birdwatchers see worms as food for robins, woodpeckers, bluebirds, catbirds, orioles, wrens, and nuthatches, to name a few. It seems that robins, barn swallows, and mourning doves—some of our favorite backyard birds—may eat half their weight each day in earthworms. Why such a passion for the mucous-covered crawlers? Earthworms are rich in protein and other nutrients and have a high moisture content, which is important for birds during periods of water scarcity. But one of the most important reasons birds often feast on them is simply that worms are usually plentiful and easy to find. The old cliché, the early bird gets the worm, may not jibe with what we know about bird foraging behavior.

The aquatic species, from birds, to toads, snakes, salamanders, and especially fish, also love the diet of worms. The attractiveness of worms to fish brings back memories of childhood, baiting the hook with a nightcrawler. But here is where the ecological unraveling starts. The worms typically used for attracting fish, sold as nightcrawlers, are non-native, from Asia, likely arriving in ornamental potted plants. Called jumping worms, the first invaders to reach our area were discovered in Baltimore in 1939. Since then, several species of the non-native worms collectively known as jumping worms (genus Amythas) have outcompeted our native red and common earthworms (genus Lumbricus). This usurpation is quite serious because jumping worms are actually harmful to forest health. They grow rapidly and become very large, up to six inches in length. But unlike our natives, they are surface feeders, so they damage the soil instead of aerating it. Birds do eat jumping and non-jumping worms, but not enough of the former to keep them from spreading.

Illustration by Trudy Nicholson

NATIVE EARTHWORM

How do you tell natives from the non-native jumpers? When you expose the surface layer of soil in your garden or in the forest, if the worms you uncover start to flop violently, these are likely jumping worms. The flip-flopping is a behavior that likely evolved to escape predators. There are other distinguishing characteristics, too, that indicate you have jumping worms: they sport a pale egg case (the clitellum) compared to their dark body, whereas the natives have darker egg cases.

Now for the native earthworm's second superpower: all species of earthworms are hermaphrodites, so they don't need another worm to make more worms. If a mate is available, they will have worm sex, but that is optional rather than mandatory for procreation.

Our native earthworms survive the winter by digging deep in the soil. Jumping worms usually don't stick around for the winter as adults but leave massive egg cases. That feature also contributes to their spread. So as fishing season approaches, if you like to use worms for bait and you buy them from a store, you can thread non-native earthworms on your hook, but don't release unused worms into the environment when your fishing excursion is over. In the northern forests of the U.S., non-native earthworms have already done major damage to the hardwood forests, where they have replaced native worms. Safely get rid of them and leave our lovely wild nature for the Lumbricids. VN

Pets of Cabin John

By Sarah Craven

Nine years ago, steadfast and loyal, Aspen arrived at 81st Street and quickly became a beloved member of the Governski family. Aspen was found as an abandoned 5-month-old puppy along with his brothers in the woods of West Virginia.

In Aspen's first weeks in Cabin John, he had to learn how to drink water from a dog bowl. He had been used to drinking water—muddy, sewer, or toilet—whenever he stumbled upon it.

Six months after Aspen's arrival in Cabin John, Meryl, Joey, and Noah Governski welcomed their new daughter and little sister Zoey into the world. Aspen's favorite activities include looking out for Zoey, sleeping, and eating bacon (in that order). Looking back, the Governski family has noted that every picture of baby Zoey has Aspen quietly standing by as a loving protector. VN
