A RECORD TURNOUT FOR ANNUAL MACARTHUR BEAUTIFICATION MULCH PARTY

by Susan Roberts

Twenty-three dedicated mulchers recently offered their time and toil to beautify Cabin John for the benefit of all of us. April 25, 2026 was a cool and cloudy morning, just perfect for the job. We had a record number of volunteers and finished in just two hours! I cannot thank everyone enough for their part in helping to make our community beautiful. Mulch was added to the gardens from Persimmon Tree Road to the Union Arch Bridge. Extra thanks go to Scott Hoffman, who picked up the mulch and provided all the heavy equipment; we could not do it without him! Nicki Wright picked up donuts and coffee for the hardworking gang.

The 23 mulchers, in alphabetical order, were: Judith Bell, Sarah Cahill, Adi and Diana Carter, Jeanne Casamento, Pete Cousté, Meredith Griggs, Marcy Harrison, Scott Hoffman, Jerry and Elaine Hornauer, Dee Jennings, Bob Krahe, Derek, Logan and Harrison Price, Susan Roberts, Mark and Tamzin Smith, Susan Stewart, Bev Sullivan, Pam Swisher and Alice Zhang. If I have inadvertently forgotten anyone, please send me an email so I can correct the list(susanroberts487@gmail.com). Thanks again to all the hard-working volunteers. ~vn

MORE RESULTS FROM 2026 CABIN JOHN COMMUNITY SURVEY

by Heidi Lewis

In January 2026, the Cabin John Citizens Association (CJCA) asked citizens to provide thoughts and ideas on a number of topics of interest and importance. 107 neighbors participated in the survey via Google forms and e-mail. The responses provide a snapshot of sentiment and opinion about Cabin John.

In the April Village News, we shared responses to questions related to what residents like about Cabin John, and the services and businesses CJers value. In this issue we share thoughts about development pressures on communities inside the Beltway including Cabin John, and the undertakings of CJCA. which are of most interest.

Montgomery County's "Thrive 2050" plan is the foundational planning document currently guiding Montgomery County planning. The stated goals of Thrive 2050 are "a vibrant economy, equity for all residents, and a healthy environment through 2050 and beyond."

CJCA News

by Scott Lewis

The April Cabin John Citizens Association meeting was held on Wednesday, April 29 at the Clara Barton Neighborhood Recreation Center. Topics included approval of the March meeting minutes, a review of upcoming CJCA community events, and several other important community items:

Update on Annual Dues: Thank you to everyone who has paid their annual CJCA dues and other optional donations. Here is where we stand as of April 29:

- CJCA dues = $4,680 collected from 229 of 800 households
- CJCA additional contributions = $2,593 collected from 94 contributions
- MacArthur Boulevard Beautification = $1,470 collected from 54 contributions
- Total CJCA donations = $8,743
- Donations to our local non-profits (Friends of Cabin John Creek, Friends of Clara Barton Community Center, Minnie's Island Community Conservancy, and Friends of Moses Hall, Inc) = $5,080

If you haven't paid your dues, and would like to support the many community endeavors the CJCA supports, please do so by May 31. Simply scan the QR code or goto https://cjca-2026-dues.cheddarup.com.

Co-op Space Update: MacArthur Plaza owners Garrett & Smith (G&S) are currently reviewing proposals they have received from 10-12 interested tenants, including three from grocers. It may be several months before they select a new tenant for the Co-op space. CJCA has shared with G&S comments from the community and results from the Cabin John survey showing very strong support for a grocer. Citizens wishing to see a grocer selected for the space are encouraged to continue advocating directly to G&S and leasing agent Brad Klinedinst (see the April VN for contact details).

Cabin John Citizens Association Annual Election: The CJCA annual officers election will be held at the Wednesday, May 20 CJCA meeting. Interested candidates are welcome to contact any current CJCA officer to learn about serving the community and express interest in standing for the election. Announced candidates currently include:

- President: Pete Cousté (currently serving 1st term as VP)
- Vice-President: Marcy Harrison (running for 8th term), Carrie Stokes
- Treasurer: Gil Schwartz (running for 2nd term)
- Secretary: Leslie Myers

DID YOU KNOW?

You've thought about selling your home but you're not sure whether it's the right time. These seven discussion questions can help you think through the decision:

- Does the home still fit your needs?
- Have you made a career or lifestyle shift?
- Have kids changed your priorities?
- Have you had a change in income?
- Is the market ripe for sale?
- Have interest rates changed?
- Are you ready for a turnkey home?

Now might not be a good time to sell if you don't have adequate equity to realize a gain, you want to retain a low interest rate, or other personal factors outweigh the reasons to move. However, if you answered yes to one or more of these questions, consider talking with a real estate professional about options.

"Living in Cabin John for over 30 years I'm invested in the success of selling homes here."

Thrive 2050 and development pressures on Cabin John were discussed at the November 2025 CJCA meeting (see presentation here). The first recommendation in the list of eight "Key Recommendations" of Thrive 2050 is: "Focus on growth in downtowns, activity centers, and along major corridors—with amenities serving existing and new residents while preserving our open spaces. "

Under Thrive 2050 all parcels in Montgomery County are categorized as either Rural Areas/Agricultural Reserve; Limited Growth; or Corridor-Focused Growth. Cabin John is in a Corridor-Focused Growth parcel surrounding River Road from the DC line to the Beltway. This section of River Road is designated as a high-growth transit route, the same designation as University and Georgia Boulevards.

https://montgomeryplanning.org/planning/corridor-planning/

Key Observations from Survey Responses:

Infrastructure as the Primary Hurdle

The physical constraints of Cabin John—specifically the one-lane bridge and MacArthur Boulevard—are viewed as absolute deal-breakers for growth.

- "We have no infrastructure for it... we already have traffic bottlenecks due to our proximity to Clara Barton, River Road, and 495."
- "MacArthur Blvd. is already a mess during the morning rush hours... Seven Locks and even our side streets are a mess."

Affordability Disconnect

While there is recognition that "there's some room for thoughtful greater density" there is skepticism that "higher density" will result in "affordable" housing. Residents fear that new developments will simply be expensive luxury units that do not solve the actual housing crisis.

- "The only housing proposals on offer are for the very rich. Need housing for the young."
- "I would support it if there were better public transport and the new houses were truly affordable and in scale with existing, traditional CJ homes."

The "Uniqueness" Factor

Residents view Cabin John as a "sleepy village" that offers a rare alternative to the more urbanized sections of Montgomery County. Preservation of this specific atmosphere is a top priority.

- "Cabin John is such a unique place. You don't see neighborhoods like this anywhere anymore."
- "This will destroy the unique nature of our sleepy village."
- "Cabin John is a unique place and I don't want it to look like every other part of Montgomery county."

What are your thoughts on Cabin John being included in a higher housing density growth corridor?

Rank in number of mentions	Category	Core Sentiment and Representative Comments
1	Infrastructure & Traffic	Concerns over the one-lane bridge, MacArthur Blvd congestion, and lack of parking. "Our one-lane bridge and single lane roads cannot support higher density housing." "There is already too much traffic when the beltway is jammed and there is no place for people to park now."
2	Community Character	Fear of losing the "small town" feel, charm, and unique "village" identity. "It will totally change the character of Cabin John." "Those of us who moved here did so in part because of its current character and charm. I would hate to see that change."
3	Information Gap	Many residents feel they don't know enough about the specific plans to have an opinion. "I don't know enough about the plan." "I still don't know enough about this to feel strongly either way."
4	Affordability & Socio-economics	A desire for "true" affordability versus $2M+ "high density" luxury builds. "It's unfortunate that many of the kids who grow up in Cabin John cannot afford to settle their families here." "The developer is not interested in building higher density and moderately priced housing; rather higher density and exorbitant priced housing."
5	Environmental Impact	Concerns about tree canopy loss, flooding/stormwater, and loss of green space. "It will destroy too many trees and ruin the look, feel and ecology of CJ." "The environment in CJ won't support higher density housing. We're already seeing serious flooding at times."
6	Current Density & Space	The belief that the "small footprint" is already at capacity or has enough density. "Cabin John's small footprint does not support additional growth." "There is no space for high density housing here."
7	Conditional Support	Support for density only if it includes ADUs, transit, or specific design standards. "I support ADUs and loosening of tight zoning... so that families can age in place." "I'm ok with slightly higher density if it can be done without taking more undeveloped land or resorting to high rises."

Speaker presentation notes from the April CJCA meeting

The Birds that visit us in Summer: Clive Harris moved to Cabin John 25 years ago with his wife, Helen, and three children. He brought with him a love for birds, which started as a young boy when he would go on walks with his father when the family lived in Hong Kong in the 1970s. Clive's excellent presentation started with a discussion of migratory birds. Migratory birds travel long distances between breeding and wintering grounds, guided by a combination of inherited instincts and learned navigation. Birds rely on multiple orientation systems—including the sun, stars, polarized light, and Earth's magnetic field—along with internal biological clocks to determine direction and timing. As they mature, birds refine these abilities into detailed mental maps that allow them to return to specific locations year after year, often following natural features like rivers and mountain ranges. Clive presented information on the 19 migratory birds we see in Cabin John in the spring, where they migrate from, where they nest and how to look for them here in our community. Thanks Clive!

Cabin John Creek: Former resident and long-time Friends of Cabin John Creek advocate Greg Gurley provided an update on the creek monitoring and its health. The presentation included monitoring results for 2024–March 2026 covering this 25-square-mile, predominantly urban (90%) watershed in Montgomery County, MD, where stormwater runoff is the top concern. Volunteers monitor six sites (down from seven after Booze Creek was discontinued in 2025) for macroinvertebrates, chemicals, and E. coli bacteria. County stream conditions remain rated "Fair to Poor," with macroinvertebrate diversity dominated by hardy, pollution-tolerant species. Chloride from road salt is the watershed's primary chemical issue, consistently testing "Fair to Poor" and spiking to "Toxic" levels after snow and ice events —a problem that has worsened with the heavy ice of 2025–2026, since salt accumulates in soils and groundwater rather than fully flushing out. Other chemical readings (phosphate, nitrate, pH, temperature) have generally been normal. Bacteria results showed several failures in 2024–2025, including an off-the-charts July 2025 reading tied to a WSSC sewer leak, with most other exceedances tied to rain events and pet waste (over 20% of creek bacteria traces to dogs!).

Here's our call to action: find shovel-scatter-sweep best practices for salt use, free SaltWatch.org test kits for citizen monitoring, pick up pet waste, reduce pesticides/fertilizers, and volunteer (especially for a macroinvertebrate team lead) at monitoring@cabinjohncreek.org. Thanks Greg!

THE SEWER SPILL - WHERE ARE WE NOW?

Most Cabin Johners still find it unfathomable that a major sewer pipe burst and spilled millions of raw sewage into our community and the Potomac River. Further, that the best solution - for the immediate several weeks afterwards - was to allow the canal to be a temporary bypass for this sewage while repairs were underway. Our community appreciates the many workers and organizations which become involved to remediate this unfortunate situation.

There are many sources of information on what happened and what is next; we encourage everyone to visit DC Water's website as a starting point. Here is a summary of the complete remediation plan as of early May. Information sourced from DC Water, Potomac Conservancy, and DC Department of Engineering and Environment.

- Bypass and pipe repair (complete): DC Water built an emergency bypass within five days (operational Jan 24, 2026) using pumps and the C&O Canal to reroute wastewater around the collapsed section. The permanent emergency repair on the ruptured Potomac Interceptor was completed March 14, 2026.

- C&O Canal cleanup (in progress): Crews—including the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers—are removing sludge and debris between Locks 13 and 14, using fine six-inch rakes to avoid damaging the historic canal. Water is being used to flush the canal as cleanup continues.

- Soil remediation: Contaminated soil is being excavated down to the clay layer in the four areas targeted for cleanup (three of four nearly complete as of mid-April 2026). DC Water expects the canal odor to persist until contaminated soils are fully removed, which is expected by the end of May 2026.

- EPA soil sampling: The EPA is conducting soil sampling around the overflow site to determine whether further work is needed before final environmental stabilization.

- Downstream impact assessment: DC Water is developing a downstream impact analysis and assessment plan to be submitted to the Maryland Department of the Environment, which will guide broader environmental remediation beyond the immediate spill site.

- Long-term pipeline rehabilitation: DC Water has previously committed roughly $625 million to update the aging collapsed sewer line; immediate disaster-response and cleanup costs are estimated at about $20 million.

- Oversight and phasing: Remediation is being conducted in phases over several months, coordinated with EPA, the Army Corps of Engineers, the Maryland Department of the Environment, and DC's Department of Energy and Environment (DOEE). Environmental advocates (Potomac Conservancy, Potomac Riverkeeper Network) are pushing for the cleanup scope to be expanded further

Poems For Passersby

Presented by Meredith Griggs

The Student Theme

by Ronald Wallace

The adjectives all ganged up on the nouns, insistent, loud, demanding, inexact, their Latinate constructions flashing. The pronouns lost their referents: They were dangling, lacked the stamina to follow the prepositions' lead in, on, into, to, toward, for, or from.
They were beset by passive voices and dead metaphors, conjunctions shouting But! or And!

The active verbs were all routinely modified by adverbs, that endlessly and colorlessly ran into trouble with the participles sitting on the margins knitting their brows like gerunds (dangling was their problem, too). The author was nowhere to be seen; was off somewhere.

Ronald Wallace is a Professor of Poetry and Writing at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Accompanied by his Portuguese Water dog, Fern, Ethan Ostrow of 79th Street pauses to read a poem. On solo walks, he and his wife sometimes photograph the poems to send to each other.

CJCA has been in existence since 1919, when the Cabin John Park Citizens Association was founded not long after the original development of this area by the American Land Company and its owner, J. S. Tomlinson. Along the way the town and association dropped "Park" from our name, though that is still the official listing on county land records.

CJCA bylaws state "The purposes of the association are to: (1) stimulate civic interest of a non-partisan and non-sectarian nature, (2) represent the interests of its citizens before appropriate agencies, and (3) promote the general welfare of Cabin John and adjacent areas in Montgomery County, Maryland. "

Volunteer CJCA officers and volunteer committee members and helpers (including the Village News team) have contributed untold hours and effort over the years in promoting the general welfare -- as do all who support CJCA with dues and donations.

The survey asked people to select those positions for which they might be interested in volunteering. 39 people responded:

It is clear from the survey and just from living in Cabin John that people here really do care about our community. Putting that care into action by volunteering in an official role, or by showing up with helping hands, is fun, fulfilling, gives a hit of endorphins for doing something good, and will help ensure the community stays as vital as it is.

Stay Tuned.....

In the June VN, we'll show how often residents are on our natural byways, and feature some of the demographic information CJers shared including how and how far they commute and how long they think they'll stay in CJ.

The 2026 survey asked respondents to rank areas of interest to gauge which CJCA projects are most important to residents, so that the association can continue to stimulate civic interest and support the general welfare of all Cabin Johners.

Check up to 10 (of 16 listed) CJCA undertakings which you think are the most important and deserving of CJCA resources.

Observations

- The "Social Fabric" is Priority #1: Traditional community events and the local newsletter (The Village News) remain the most important touchpoints for residents.
- Development Concerns: Four of the top six interests involve managing or monitoring growth (Beltway expansion, development plans, building activity, and green space preservation).
- Safety and Aesthetics: MacArthur Blvd. beautification (67 mentions) and pedestrian safety (55 mentions) suggest residents are willing to invest time and money in making this a safe, walkable neighborhood and have a strong desire to keep our main thoroughfares attractive.
